

Serving as the go-to resource for the textile industry since 1990, ITMA has recently undergone a total rebranding, resulting in its new name: International Textile Alliance (ITA). After updating its vision and mission statements, the alliance and its board chose the name ITA for its ability to communicate the organization's many benefits beyond the Showtime Market—for which it is most closely associated.

Uniquely positioned at the center of the textile, leather and trimmings industries, ITA is focused on providing resources and opportunities to its membership that promote industry advancement through education, awareness, advocacy and technology. While the Showtime Market is a key benefit of membership, the organization provides a variety of leadership, networking and educational opportunities throughout the year. These events are designed to support individual member businesses, as well as advance the industry.

ITA is a not for profit business association, whose core membership consists of mills, converters, distributors, agents, tanneries, and trimming manufacturers that produce decorative coverings for the home furnishings industry and like manufacturers. All members are legal entities, which have full material and intellectual titles to the entire collections marketed. All members pay an annual membership fee, which provides the financial support needed to support the alliance's objectives and produce ITA Showtime.
